STATE OF MAINE.

Penobscot, ss. Supreme Judicial Court, In Equity.

Joseph O. Smith, Insurance Commissioner, vs. Maine and New Brunswick Insurance Co.

To the Supreme Judicial Court:

Joseph O. Smith, of Skowhegan, in the County of Somerset, Insurance Commissioner of the State of Maine, complains against the Maine and New Brunswick Insurance Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maine, and located at Bangor, in the County of Penobscot, and says:

First. That your complainant is Insurance Commissioner of the State of Maine, and that said corporation is a domestic insurance company, organized and existing under act of incorporation of said State, Private Laws of 1887, Chapter 131.

Second. That there are accrued indemnity claims upon certificates and policies of said corporation, the amounts of which are indefinite and unadjusted amounting, as your complainant estimates, and believes, to forty-three thousand dollars, and that there are debts due from said corporation to its officers and others of amounts to your complainant unknown, and on examination your complainant thinks said domestic insurance company is in such a condition as to render its further proceedings hazardous to the public and its policy holders, and that this court should issue an injunction restraining it from proceeding further with its business and take such other action as is prescribed by law in such cases.

Third. That said corporation has an unexhausted portion of funds in the hands of the Treasurer of the State of Maine, amounting to about fifty-seven thousand dollars, and that it is, for the interest of the creditors and all parties concerned, that a Receiver or Trustee be appointed to collect and hold the assets of the corporation for ratable distribution among all the claimants of the corporation and other legal creditors, and that such other things should be done as are requisite for the safety of the public and for the best interests of all parties concerned.

Fourth. Your complainant avers that it is for the best interest of all concerned that said company be wound up and its existence ended.

Wherefore your complainant prays:

1. That process of subpœna may be issued directed to the said Maine and New Brunswick Insurance Company, directing it on a day certain to appear and answer all and singular the premises.

2. That such notice or notices as to the court shall seem meet, if any, may be ordered by the court to any and all parties interested, summoning them to show cause, if any they have, why injunction should not be issued by this court restraining this company from proceeding further with its business; and also to show cause, if any they have, why a Receiver should not be appointed to wind up the affairs of the said corporation as hereinafter prayed.

3. That a temporary injunction may be issued by this court restraining said company, in whole or in part, from proceeding further with its business.

4. That a permanent injunction may be issued by this court restraining this company, in whole or in part, from proceeding further with its business.

5. That a receiver may forthwith be appointed to take possession of the property and assets of said corporation, and also masters, if need be, so that said property and assets may be converted into cash, as soon as may be, and a ratable distribution thereof made among all the creditors of said corporation, and the surplus, if any there be, used for the payment of the indebtedness of the said corporation by dividing it ratably among these persons legally entitled thereto and that the affairs of said corporation may be wound up.

6. That said Company be wound up and its existence ended.

7. Your complainant prays for such further and equitable relief as in law and equity he may be entitled to receive and that all things may be done which in the opinion of this court are requisite for the safety of the public and for the best interest of all parties concerned.

To the Honorable John A. Peters, Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court:

Joseph O. Smith, Insurance Commissioner of the State of Maine, respectfully represents that, upon examination by him personally made into the affairs of the Bangor Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Bangor, he thinks said Company is insolvent and unable to pay in full the liabilities now existing against it, and that said Company is in such a condition as to render its further proceedings hazardous to the public and its policy holders.

He therefore asks that an injunction may be granted restraining the Company wholly from further proceeding with its business and that a Receiver may be appointed to receive the assets of said Company, and administer the same according to law, and that such further proceedings may be had and decrees and orders passed as may be necessary to the final close of the Company's business and distribution of its assets and requisite for the safety of the public and for the best interests of all parties concerned.

PANIC WORN OUT.

Depositors Resume Confidence and Return Their Money.

DENVER, Col., July 20. There will apparently be no more bank failures in Denver. The panic wore itself out yesterday with the failure of the People's German and State National Banks. This morning in the First and Colorado Banks a long string of depositors, reaching nearly to the street, were lined up in front of the receiving tellers' windows, and the money was going back into the bank vaults almost as rapidly as it was withdrawn during the past three days. The German, State and People's National could pay $3 for $1 if they could realize on securities. There may be a few commercial failures in the city within the next few days as a result of the suspension of the banks. It is stated to-day that the McNamara dry goods house, which failed Monday for $200,000, has settled with the principal creditors and will resume business Monday.

Local wheelmen met the visitors, some of them the best known amateur riders in the country, including Windle Fogler, Tyler Nelson Sawyer, and Hoyland Smith, at the railroad station, on the arrival of the forenoon train. A line was formed at 11.30 and a run made through the principal streets. There were nearly 200 cyclers in the parade, the largest number ever seen together in the State, including several ladies. At the conclusion of the parade the riders grouped in front of the State House and were photographed. This was followed by a brief business meeting at Pythian Hall.

DEPOSITS WITHDRAWN.

Security Trust at Nashua, N. H., Closed Its Doors.

NASHUA, N. H., July 20. The Security Trust closed its doors this morning for business. The bank has not met with losses but stopped business on account of the withdrawal of deposits. The treasurer informs the Associated Press that the bank will pay all depositors in full in time, closing business to protect depositors. It has a capital and surplus of $250,000, which must be paid out before loss can come to depositors. There is considerable excitement in consequence.

WORLD'S DEFICIENCY.

Condition of the Present Wheat Crop.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 20. The Journal of Agriculture treating of the condition of the present wheat crop, says the best American and European authorities agree that the world's deficiency will be at least 100,000,000 bushels. The most reliable figures now place the total American crop of 1893 at 383,000,000 bushels, which, added to the surplus carried over, will make less than 450,000,000 bushels. England will probably take 250,000,000 and home trade needs 370,000,000 bushels.

THE FAILED DENVER BANKS.

Secretary Eckles' Intention to Brace Them Up.

He Criticises Depositors for Withdrawing Their Money.

Says the Failures Were No Fault of the Officials.

WASHINGTON, July 20. James H. Eckles, Comptroller of Currency, this morning addressed to the National Bank Examiner at Denver a despatch which says: I wish you would announce to the officers of banks which have failed in Denver that it is my intention to lend them every aid possible, looking toward speedy resumption on their part, and that I shall grant to them sufficient time to enable them to not only collect in such amounts as are speedily collectible, but to get together such amounts of money as will enable them to open upon a small basis. It seems to me that such citizens as have by a foolish course of conduct in withdrawing deposits from banks which so long enjoyed their complete confidence and brought about this condition, ought, in view of the damage they have done their city, as quickly as possible to repair it by standing ready to deposit with them.

I Fully Appreciate

all of the circumstances of the situation and that no unnecessary loss may be entailed. You are authorized to employ as assistants to protect the paper and collect in moneys, the most competent and trustworthy employes in such institutions.

I have also ordered Examiner McHugh, of Iowa, to report at once to assist you. I desire that this telegram be given to the press at Denver, evidencing as it does that the comptroller has faith in the ability of the banks of Denver to resume; and of his desire to lend them every assistance consistent with his official duty. When asked to express more fully his views on the condition of the affairs, Mr. Eckels said the failures in Denver yesterday, like a number of other National bank failures, were caused by no fault of the bank officials but through foolish and uncalled for lack of confidence on part of the depositors.

Notifications of two more failures reached Mr. Eckels this forenoon, the First National Bank, of Hainesville, Mo., and Oklahoma National Bank, of Oklahoma city, Oklahoma.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The Cholera in Russia.

LONDON, July 20. The cholera is rampant among the poorer classes in Moscow. Much indignation is felt in Russia because the director of prisons, upon learning there was cholera in Moscow prisons, ordered a majority of prisoners to be removed to four other cities, thus increasing the danger of a spreading of the infection. There has been no cases so far in St. Petersburg. In Paledia and in other infected places the death rate has not lessened.

A statement is published that Baron Mohrenhein, the Russian embassador to France, officially informed the French government prior to the session of the chamber of deputies, on Tuesday, last, when M. Develle, foreign minister, defined France's position on the Franco-Siamese dispute that Russia would support France on all points involved in the Siamese difficulty. It is further said that the Russian fleet in the Chinese waters is under orders to proceed to the Gulf of Siam for the purpose of supporting the French and of protecting French residents in Siam.

China Will Support Siam.

TIEN TSIN, July 20. Information has been received here from Pekin to the effect that China has taken measures to support Siam as against the French. Siam has for many years paid tribute to China, but only as a matter of usage and convenience. It is now apparent that China is determined to assist the Siamese against French encroachments upon their territory.

AN "ORDERLY" LYNCHING.

The Victim Was, as Usual, a Negro and his Crime Poisoning Horses.

NORFOLK, Va., July 17. Information reached this city to-day of a lynching which took place on Saturday night, at Belmans, a station on the Atlantic & Danville Railroad, about twelve miles from Portsmouth. Last winter and spring, at different times, John Cartwright of Cartwright's, Nansemond county, lost seven horses which died from poisoning, and later, his dwelling, with the entire contents, was destroyed by fire. Suspicion pointed to a negro named Isaac Jenkins, a former employe, and detectives were employed to work up the case.

The authorities had evidence enough to arrest Jenkins and Saturday night he was arrested, and then confessed his crime and said that he would not be satisfied until he had killed Mr. Cartwright. The news of his confession soon spread and in a short time quite a crowd assembled, and after quietly discussing the matter they unanimously decided that it was not well for Jenkins to live in that community.

So they waited quietly, and when Constable Branch and the guard reached a quiet portion of the road they were met by a posse of disguised men and the officer and the guard were soon overpowered. The prisoner was taken a few hundred yards from the road, where a rope was placed around his neck and he was hauled up to a limb of a tree. The party then fired a number of shots at the body and quietly dispersed.

Sunday morning, the rope and a bag covered with blood were found, but the body was gone and there is no clew to the people who did the hanging. The negro before he was hung up was asked if he had anything to say, when he replied "Yes," that he committed the [illegible] and that he would be satisfied to die.

The affair was conducted in a quiet and orderly manner, no excitement was created and the matter was quietly talked of by the citizens of that section [illegible] Sunday morning.

WHAT DID IT MEAN?

"You Shan't Hound Me Any More."

Tragic Death of a Kansas City Lawyer

At the Hands of a Bank Cashier.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., July 20. Last night A. W. Little, cashier of the First National Bank and ex-president of the Amerdale Bank, shot and killed Benjamin E. Johnson, one of the most prominent of the rising attorneys of Kansas. Little walked up to Johnson, who was sitting on a bench in front of a drug store with a number of friends, and with an oath, exclaimed: "You shan't hound me any more." Then he deliberately drew a revolver from his pocket, and pointing it at Johnson, fired. The ball struck Johnson in the left side and caused instant death. He fell to the sidewalk, and Little furiously jumped upon the prostrate man and beat him repeatedly over the head with the butt of his weapon. He then gave himself up to the police and is now in jail. The cause of the tragedy is not known.

A FATAL FALL.

A Night Watchman Precipitated Down an Elevator Well.

PENACOOK, N. H., July 20. Alfred Elliott, night watchman at Queeden's furniture factory, fell five stories down an elevator well last night and was killed. His body was terribly mangled.

DIED FROM HIS INJURIES.

A Well Known Minister Falls from a Street Car.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 20. Rev. John Allison, one of the best known Presbyterian preachers in the country, died yesterday from the effects of a fall from a street car. He was for ten years president of Mount Allison female seminary, Sackville, N. B.

STARVING CENTENARIAN.

Mrs. Martha Post, Who is One Hundred and One Years Old, Hasn't Taken Any Food for Five Weeks.

BURLINGTON, N. J., July 17, 1893. Mrs. Martha Post is one hundred and one years old and is still alive despite the fact that she has not tasted food for five weeks. She lay to-day in her home on Staley street like one already dead, and the physicians attending her say that she is a marvel of vitality.

Her birthday was on May 8 last, and then she seemed to be in full possession of her faculties. She is a great favorite with the Sunday school children and her class was the largest in the church. The youngsters love her and on her birthday they came to her with flowers. She kissed the fresh faces and laughed with them. Hundreds of friends from far and near called, and the old lady seemed very happy indeed.

The tax may have been too great for her. She began to fail and shortly afterward took to her bed. She has not left it since.

Mrs. Post, the sixth child of George Cadmus and Effie Fielding, was born in Jersey City. In the early part of the present century, when she was quite a child, a scourge of yellow fever broke out and all the Cadmuses, except Martha, were taken down. She did the nursing.

When it became necessary for Jersey City to have a place of worship the Dutch Reformed Church was formed and a call went forth for subscriptions to defray the expenses. Martha went from door to door and solicited funds. She has always been a devout Christian.

Mrs. Post's husband died only a short time ago at the advanced age of ninety-five years. Since then she has lived with her son-in-law, George Minord, of this place. Her hair is yet dark and her eyes blue. On her last birthday they were as sparkling as those of a school girl, and she walked with a light step.

Mrs. Post did lose her teeth but no amount of persuasion would induce her to wear false ones. She has never yet worn eyeglasses, and up to within a year ago read with perfect ease. She has never had her photograph taken.

Mrs. Post seemed to feel that she soon must die, and she smiled when she spoke of it. Her faculties began to fail one by one. Finally she could not move. Then she refused food and could not be induced to take refreshments in any form. A small quantity of milk has been forced between her aged lips, but it will go only a short way toward maintaining the dimly flickering fire of her life.

A Queer Experience with a Bunco Steerer.

Sudden Insanity, Death from Lockjaw, etc.

Androscoggin.

Auburn suffers from its street washing brigade. Sunday morning two crews each in charge of a hydrant fell to playing the hose on each other instead of the street. Mud was spattered on the store windows and one window being open the goods inside were deluged. To say that some of the merchants were mad the next morning is putting it mildly.

Sheriff Hill's spill at the city bank in Auburn, Tuesday, will go down as one of the largest, if not the largest, amount of liquor ever spilled in one day in Androscoggin county. The sheriff, his two deputies and three other able bodied men worked until 4 P. M., at which time a seventh man who had been keeping "tally" announced the total amount of the spill to have been 10,000 gallons. The liquor was beer and ale and was the accumulation of only a few weeks.

Aroostook.

Houlton Pioneer: Greenfield White, son of Jacob White, was taken suddenly crazy Sunday evening and ran out of the house with only his shirt and pants on, and made for the woods near by (he lives south of Park street) running a good deal faster than we ever saw him work. Neighbors searched the woods all night and not until yesterday afternoon did they succeed in capturing him. He was found in the White Settlement woods with feet bleeding and clothes torn. He was conveyed home and Dr. Fitzmaurice sent for. This noon the doctor thought he might recover his reason.

Shipped from Houlton station for week ending July 15, the following carloads: Long lumber, 14; shingles, 5; laths, 2; bark, 1; hay, 8; leather, 2; bones, 1; horses 2; cattle 1; miscellaneous, 8. Total, 44 cars.

Francis Barnes, long a resident of Houlton, a highly respected citizen, died Sunday night at 12 o'clock, aged fifty-four years.

Grading for side track is being done from the main line of the B. & A. in the Ingersoll field to the Bangor road in Houlton.

The fellow who has been trying for a few nights past to gain an entrance into a number of residences in this village, better wear a bullet proof suit. Our citizens are on the watch for him, is the warning given by the Houlton Pioneer.

Cumberland.

A little daughter of Ferdinand Bailey, of Deering, died from lock-jaw, Tuesday. She hurt her foot not long ago but the wound was not regarded as serious. Monday night her parents were alarmed by sounds from her room and found her in great pain and unable to open her teeth. They summoned a doctor who did all he could for her, but it was impossible to save her life.

Kennebec.

Mayor Dingley, of Gardiner, has just received from Mrs. Susan L. C. Palmer, of New York, the offer of a fountain to be placed on the common, as a memorial of her late husband, Dr. G. S. Palmer, of Gardiner, the only conditions being that the city shall keep it in repair and supplied with water.

Oxford.

A Denmark woman was getting ready for company a few days ago, and was very anxious to make some ice cream, but didn't know where in that rural region she could get any ice—when along came a thunder shower and she gathered up enough hailstones to freeze her cream in good shape. The miracle is well attested.

Piscataquis.

There are said to be three or four moose between Greenville and Baker mountain. They have been frequently seen by various individuals the present summer. A short time ago a four-year-old bull came within eight rods of the front door of W. H. Galusha's house, a half mile from Greenville village. He was seen again in a field the next morning about a half mile away. These animals seem to appreciate the protection which the law throws around them. Were it not for the destructive nature of man, the moose, deer, caribou, antelope and elk would be as docile now as on the day when Adam first gave them names.

We understand that the completion of the Foxcroft Opera House at an early date has been assured, says the Dover Observer. A syndicate of thirty-one members has been formed, which will proceed at once with the work. The sum of $238 has been pledged by private citizens in aid of the enterprise, the balance of the cost to be cared for by the syndicate. Walls and ceilings are to be frescoed, scenery provided for the platform, and seats furnished. When finished, this will be a fine addition to the hall capacity of the two villages for lectures, balls, public meetings, and other entertainments.

F. E. Waterman, of Foxcroft, secured a fine landlocked salmon at Sebec Lake, Saturday, which weighed seven pounds. He worked about an hour before landing it in the boat. It was a beauty. Mr. Waterman also brought home several white perch.

Somerset.

The big Madison pulp mill, that shut down Saturday, will be running again in two months, and when the contemplated improvements and changes are perfected it will undoubtedly be a success. The travestors have had hard luck, so far, yet they own a magnificent property and may be sanguine of future returns. Meanwhile, with the pulp mill and woolen mill both closed, these are blue days for a town that a year ago was the boomiest in Maine.

York.

Richard M. Bailey, who lives on the Kennebunk road, was kicked by a horse, one night this week, and his nose was broken and flattened out and a large gash cut on the right side of his face.

Capt. Charles O. Derrill, of Biddeford, while in Boston, Tuesday, ran across a polite stranger who knew one of Derrill's friends, after learning that that gentleman came from Biddeford, engaged the captain to take a package to such friend, asked him to change a $500 bill, borrowed $258 of him for a few minutes and then disappeared. So far the plot is threadbare, but Derrill here introduced a few variations. He immediately repented of his act, followed his new acquaintance into a building only to find he had gone out another door, retraced his steps, and ran plump into the very man he was looking for. The confidence man tried to run but Derrill was too quick for him, and felled him with a blow. He then jumped on him and sat there until a policeman appeared. The money was recovered and the swindler who said his name was Godfrey, but who proved to be George H. Appleby, a notorious crook, is now in jail having a chance to meditate on the danger of picking up unknown friends on the street.

Whig and Courier.

BY BOUTELLE BROTHERS.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle Brothers, and communications intended for publication should be addressed "Editor of Whig and Courier."

FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1893.

Mr. Olney, the corporation counsel holding the position of Attorney-General under this Administration, has determined to make himself solid with the boys and consequently has ordered a clean sweep in his department. The silk stocking element of the Massachusetts Democracy are great spoils hunters. Josiah Quincy has done nothing since he went to Washington but fish in the soup kettle for [illegible] for his especial friends.

The New York W[illegible] but pleased with the report of the [illegible]lican Club of that city, in which the present depression in business is aptly characterized as the "Democratic panic of 1893." The World would have howled itself hoarse had the condition now confronting the people occurred under a Republican administration, but in its judgment as the Democrats are responsible for the panic, it is a high misdemeanor to mention the fact. If it is so unhappy thus early in the season, it is sad to think of its condition in the months that are to come, for it can rest assured that sober thinking men and papers will continue to place the responsibility where it belongs.

Our solid and sensible men of business should deal with the chronic croaker as he deserves, and turn him out of doors. He embodies the most foolish sort of pessimism. There is not even the shadow of reason for tolerating him, for his gloomy prognostications are only freaks of a morbid imagination. It would be difficult to find the slightest warrant, outside his jaundiced fancy, for a single one of his doleful forebodings.—Boston Globe.

The sudden change of front on the part of the Democrats is certainly very amusing. Last year every Democratic organ and every Democratic speaker were croaking over all kinds of imaginary disasters, notwithstanding the fact that the business of the country was in an extremely satisfactory condition, a condition the people would be most happy to see restored to-day. Now that the Democrats have been successful and Republican prosperity has given way to Democratic depression, the Democratic calamity wailers, at a time when calamity was unknown, in the face of the worst condition of business experienced for a great many years as the direct result of the Cleveland free trade victory, calmly express the opinion that those who rebel against actual calamity ought to be rebuked. In other words it was perfectly legitimate for them to deliberately lie about the situation one year ago, but now that we are enjoying a Cleveland panic it is a high crime to truthfully point out the real cause of the depression.

Two Pictures.

We invite the attention of the old veterans to the following article in the Philadelphia Press, showing the effect of Hoke Smith's ruling on the veterans of the war and the contrast between the condition of the Union hater and the Union preserver, both of whom are in a sense pensioners on the government, the former living in luxury and the latter in want. The "two pictures" are instructive: Last week an invalid soldier was led up to the pension office in Boston to receive the pension the government had granted him for total disability. His name is Joseph King and he is blind and deaf as the result of getting in the way of a rebel shell, which exploded near him when he was serving his country on Roanoke Island. He has also a troublesome wound in his hip where a rebel bullet plowed its way through his body. He was given a pension for total disability, but when he asked for his money last week he was told that he could not have it because Hoke Smith, Secretary of the Interior, had ordered that his pension should be suspended.

At the same time that this disabled soldier, who is 51 years old and a grandson of the commander of the privateer Growler in the war of 1812, was led away from the pension office penniless, the man who stopped his money was, where? On the way to enjoy a luxurious vacation in the Yellowstone Park. Let the Democratic St. Paul Globe tell the story:—

Hon. Hoke Smith, of Georgia, Secretary of the Department of the Interior in President Cleveland's Cabinet, arrived in St. Paul yesterday morning. In the Secretary's party beside himself are his wife and three children, Marion, a bright boy, aged 8; Mary Brent, aged 6, and Lucy Ermina, the baby; Dr. H. H. Smith and wife, of Atlanta, the Secretary's father and mother; Miss May Hull, of Athens, Ga.; Miss Cornelia Jackson, the lady who had the honor of representing Georgia at the World's Fair; Claude N. Bennett, private secretary, and two servants.

Mr. Hoke Smith informed a Globe reporter that he was traveling to Yellowstone Park, and that he was delighted with all that he had seen on his journey. He draws his salary regularly from the Government and is probably traveling dead head on the railroads. The loss and suffering Joseph King will have to endure by being deprived of the only means of support that he and his invalid wife have will not detract from the enjoyment of the man who ordered the money stopped. The two events, however, form a picture such as the world never saw before. The men who tried to destroy the Government now control it and have at their mercy the men who fought to save the same Government from destruction.

A Fight to the Finish.

A Washington despatch to the New York Tribune says: It would be interesting to know whether Congressman Livingston, of Georgia, is counted by the Administration among its converts on the silver question. Colonel Livingston, it may be remembered, is the Democratic Representative in response to whose personal appeals and representations President Cleveland overruled a member of his Cabinet, Hoke Smith, in the matter of the Conyers postmastership, after the Postmaster-General had approved the latter's recommendation. After that incident, and one which occurred not long afterward when Livingston achieved a signal triumph over both Hoke Smith and Senators Gordon and Colquitt in the tussle over the United States Marshalship for the Northern District of Georgia, some of Mr. Cleveland's friends in Washington gayly asserted that, "Livingston has been 'fixed' and will vote as the Administration desires."

The question now arises as to whether Livingston will stay "fixed," and some recent utterances of his rather tend to indicate that he will not. He visited Atlanta several days ago and in conversation with a reporter he said that he believed that the coming session "will be the hottest session of Congress since the war" because "there will be a fight over the silver question that will warm things right lively."

When asked what he thought would be the outcome Colonel Livingston replied that he thought "the Democratic party would fulfil the pledges of the platform," and that "the free coinage of silver will triumph over the policy of those who are trying to secure a gold basis." Colonel Livingston not only recognizes that the Democratic party is divided into two hostile factions on the money question, but clearly indicates that his sympathies are with the free coinage faction, for he continued:

"One thing is certain. We of the South will be found fighting straightout for the fulfillment of every promise we have made to the people, and with the West to back us it seems clear to me that we can but succeed, whatever may be the efforts of the other wing of the party."

That is curious talk from a man who was said to have been "fixed" by a few sops of Federal patronage, wrung from a reluctant President at the expense of a hostile Cabinet officer. But Colonel Livingstone is an enthusiastic as well as a sincere man, in his way, and he evidently believes (he has served only one term in Congress) that the pledges made in the Democratic National platform, which "has everything in it," are to be redeemed, for he says:

"The coming session of Congress will do more for the masses than any Congress we have had since the war. I feel sure that every reform movement, every popular piece of legislation as outlined in our platform will be carried into effect. I am of the opinion that the people will triumph in the session of Congress so nigh at hand. It is going to be a fight for the people, and don't you forget it. Everybody knows that our last Democratic platform was made broad and liberal. It has everything in it that the masses have clamored for so loudly and so rightfully for the past few years. If it is carried out—and it will be—then the people will be on top, and that is what I think will be the outcome of the approaching session of Congress."

It is pertinent to add that Colonel Livingston is exceedingly popular in Georgia these days—much more popular and influential than Hoke Smith is, even in Atlanta.

Another new and popular Georgia Congressman is Mr. Moses, of the IVth District. Among the achievements credited to him in the last Congress was the enactment of the "Indian War Pension bill," which, as his admirers justly claim, "was strictly a Southern measure, which has brought more than $125,000 a year to the State of Georgia and has brought, or will bring, about four times as much to the Southern States." It is hardly necessary to remark that Hoke Smith has not appointed a "Board of Revision" to investigate allowances under this act.

He is too busy with his raid on Union pensioners. But, to return to Mr. Moses. He has received a number of favors from the Administration—enough, as some of its friends supposed, to "fix" him also when the trial should come on the unconstitutional repeal of the silver purchase law. It may be that they were mistaken. In conversation with a reporter in Atlanta several days ago Mr. Moses said that he had sufficient faith in the Democratic party to believe that its platform would be carried out to the letter, and that "the silver question will be safely adjusted in strict accordance with the platform," in order that there should be no doubt in regard to his own position, or of his recognition of the fact that the Democratic party is split into two hostile factions on the silver question. Mr. Moses added:

"One thing I am eternally opposed to. I am eternally opposed to yielding an inch to any wing of the Democratic party on the free coinage issue. It is our faith, it is the platform, and we must stand by the platform. I believe we will do it. I know that the South and West will shake hands on the money question, and I know that they cannot be made to knuckle or cower. It is going to be a fight to the finish; now wait and see."

A GOOD CAPTURE.

Brutal Burglars Caught by Sheriff of Washington County.

They Robbed and Ill-treated an Aged Couple of Lubec.

EAST MACHIAS, July 20. Sheriff Longfellow and County Attorney Campbell returned to-night from a successful trip to Lubec in search of the two burglars, who, on the evening of June 21st, 1892, at West Lubec, robbed John Black and his sister, Ann Black, aged respectively 65 and 78 years, of nearly $2,350 in gold, silver and greenbacks, the entire savings of their lifetime on their little farm.

The aged people were brutally pounded and left bound and gagged, from the effects of which neither has yet recovered. Deputy Sheriff Peter A. Martin, who has been engaged on the case for about six months and to whom great credit is due, has just lodged the prisoners, James McIsaac, Jr., and Howard Parker, in the Machias jail. Their arrest at daylight this morning created considerable excitement in Lubec, which was further increased by the escape a few hours later of Parker, who was finally captured under an adjoining stable after a search of four hours.

Parker, who has broken jail once and successfully eluded the officers, jumped from the second story window leaving a crutch and cane.

The prisoners were arraigned before Trial Justice J. H. Gray and pleaded guilty, and were committed in default of five thousand dollars bail to the October term of court.

THOUSANDS OUT OF WORK.

Orders for Twelve Millions of Goods Countermanded.

DENVER, Col., July 20. It is estimated to-day that there are 10,000 men in Denver unable to secure employment and 20,000 in outside towns in the same condition, half of whom are making their way to this city, where they will become public charges if the conditions do not speedily change.

All the commercial bodies in this city will meet with representatives of eastern roads to-night and the latter will be asked to make a $5 rate from here to the Missouri river for this class of people.

It is argued that these men are not paupers, but if they can get into the agricultural districts they will be able to secure employment in the harvest fields, where men will soon be in demand.

A conservative estimate of the men discharged by railways, mines, business houses, and factories since the silver panic started, places the number at 10,000. It is estimated that Colorado, Utah, Montana and New Mexico merchants have countermanded orders on New York wholesale houses for goods during this time amounting to over $12,000,000.

GREAT STRIKE POSSIBLE.

The Most Extensive England has Ever Witnessed.

LONDON, July 20. The miners' federation continued their conference at Birmingham to-day. Upon the action of the conference depends the question whether there shall be inaugurated the greatest strike England has ever seen. The conference yesterday decided that the proposed reduction would not be acceptable to the miners. In some mining districts the men were not notified that their wages would be reduced. The federation was well aware of the attempt of the mine owners to have an extra quantity of coal mined to form stock which could be disposed of at an advanced price should a strike be inaugurated.

To-day action was taken by the conference to block this scheme. It was decided to call out men who have received notice of a reduction. These men will be idle until the expiration of July 28th, of the general notice of the reduction when they will be allowed to return to work. A deputation of miners will meet the mine owners in London to-morrow for the purpose of discussing the wage question and hopes are entertained that an agreement will be arrived at.

THE CLOSING OF MILLS.

Discussion of the Effect of the Action.

NEW YORK, July 20. The Evening Post says: The effect of the proposed closing of the large Amoskeag cotton mill plant at Manchester, N. H., during August, it is asserted, is generally overestimated. This is the view of many leading cotton merchants of this city. It is regarded as probable that many other mills in New England, such as the Manchester mills, Pembroke, Webster and China mills and York Manufacturing Company of Saco, will shut down. Nevertheless the situation was not considered an alarming one by the New York merchants.

One who combines cotton with banking trading said to-day: "The closing of the Amoskeag mill will undoubtedly be followed by the closing of other large manufacturing concerns in New England perhaps New York. It will be done as a precautionary measure to prevent a large accumulation of goods during the autumn. Already there are large accumulations of ginghams, which will be forced down in price if production is continued at the present rate. A large proportion of these are goods for the spring trade. In view of the present financial disasters it will hardly be expected that the country will have quite recovered from the drain by spring, so trade then will probably be anything but brisk. In view of the smaller demands therefore it is but natural that the mills should diminish the output accordingly."

AN ANNOYING CASE.

American Fishing Schooner Detained a Short Time.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 20. Advices from Newfoundland state that the American fishing schooner Horace B. Parker, Capt. William Thomas, was seized at Cape Broyle on the third instant by Customs Officer Carew. The vessel had bait and ice alongside and on board. After being detained an hour the vessel was released, but the captain had to throw the stack away as the ice had melted. He wired the American government, as he paid the license and light dues at Placentia, in American coin.

BLOODSHED FEARED

Over the Attempt to Replace Miners.

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, July 20. It is current here with railroad officials as authority that one thousand colored men were put on the cars at Birmingham, Ala., last night and started for Kansas to take the places of the striking miners. It is thought that they are to be distributed to all affected mines in the State. Trouble, perhaps bloodshed, will undoubtedly follow such an attempt.

Siamese Court Agitated.

PARIS, July 20. A despatch from Bangkok states that the Siamese Court is greatly agitated. Preparations are apparently under way for the departure of the king and court from the capitol.

It is stated in Bangkok that the popular agitation in favor of France started in the province of Batambang, some distance to the south-east of the capital, and troops were sent to put down the sedition.

Lack of Excitement over Home Rule Bill.

LONDON, July 20. The last eleven clauses of the Home Rule bill were brought through the committee stage in the house of commons this evening. Clause 35, concerning the significance of the term used in the bills, was lost. Other clauses were carried. There was a total lack of excitement throughout the evening.

Poor Little Siam.

BANGKOK, July 20. The belligerent attitude of the French gunboats Comet, Inconstante and Forfait, opposite the middle of the city, is causing great anxiety among the people. All three gunboats have steam up and are cleared for action. They can train their guns on any Siamese gunboat that essays to pass. Siam is doing her best to convince them that her intentions are amicable, but freedom of action in negotiations is much restricted by the pressure exercised ostentatiously by the French war vessels.

England Looking Out for Her Own Interests.

LONDON, July 20. A special cabinet meeting was summoned this afternoon, with a full attendance. France's demands on Siam were discussed at length, and eventually instructions for Marquis of Dufferin, British ambassador to France, were formulated and approved. Late in the afternoon orders were dispatched by the admiralty to Vice Admiral Sir E. R. Fremantle, commander-in-chief of the Chinese division of the fleet.

NORWALK, Ct., July 20. Norwalk manufacturers are experiencing the dullest season they have ever known. Hutchinson, Cole & Co., shirt manufacturers, have been shut down three weeks. Roth & Goldsmith, corset manufacturers, employing nearly 500 operatives, are idle. Several hat shops employing a hundred men and women are doing practically no business. To-night the Norwalk Lock Company laid off 100 men indefinitely because of dullness in trade.

DR. MEYER

Pleads Not Guilty to Charge of Poisoning.

NEW YORK, July 20. Dr. Meyer, the alleged wholesale poisoner, was arraigned before Judge Cowing this morning. He entered a plea of not guilty.

Further Evidence Against Meyer.

A New York despatch says: Julius Dahlmann, who keeps a confectionery shop at 16 Whitehall street, thinks he knew Dr. Henry C. W. Meyer, the alleged poisoner of Ludwig Brandt, in Denver in 1887. Dahlmann was introduced to a Dr. Meyer by a drug clerk named Klotz. Klotz lived with a woman who he said was his wife, although it was believed he had left his wife in Chicago. This woman had been an actress and had known Meyer in Chicago. Klotz and Meyer had been friends in Chicago also. Klotz had $1,000 insurance on his life.

Shortly after Meyer arrived in Denver Klotz grew ill. Dahlmann says he saw Dr. Meyer attempt to perform a surgical operation on Klotz. The instruments he had were rusty and discolored. Dahlmann had a physician sent for, who prescribed a trip to California. Klotz took the trip, and in four weeks returned, apparently a well man, but not long after he suddenly died. Two days after his death Meyer disappeared, and with him his supposed wife. The Klotz woman collected the insurance on Klotz's life and also disappeared.

Howe & Hummel, it is said, will withdraw from Meyer's defence.

More Evidence.

A Toledo, O., despatch says: Detective Jack Carew Wednesday night found evidence of importance in the case of Dr. Henry W. C. Meyer, charged with poisoning. Mr. Carew searched the garret of a house in which a family named Schurtz lived, across from where the Meyers lived. The Schultzes were the only friends the Meyers seemed to have in the neighborhood. Mr. Carew found a book issued by the Mutual Life Insurance Company to policy-holders on "How to Care for the Sick," a medicine chest filled with medicines, books on theosophy, a receipt for $3.50, from J. Baum for rent of a piano in May, 1892, and several photographs and Toledo addresses. The New York authorities have been notified.

THE NEW NAVY.

A Contract for Materials Made.

A Washington despatch says: Half a million dollars' worth of contracts for steel forgings were given out at the navy department Wednesday. These contracts will furnish the material for the guns of the latest battleship, the cruiser Brooklyn, the three gunboats and the Essex. The Midvale Steel Company and the Bethlehem Iron Company got the contracts, each firm receiving nearly an equal share in the amount to be expended for this material. The Midvale Company will furnish the forgings for the 4 and 8 and 3-inch guns, and the Bethlehem Company the forgings for the 5 and 12 inch guns.

The ordnance officers are gratified to note a reduction in the price of forgings in nearly every instance over the last contract made. The contract made to-day for 4-inch forgings is at the rate of 28¾ cents per pound, while the contract previously made was at the rate of 30 cents per pound. The present contract for 5-inch forgings is 1 cts. per pound less than the old contract, which was 30 cents, and the present contract for 12-inch forgings is 4½ cents per pound cheaper than the old contract which was at the rate of 33 cents.

The half million dollars which is to be spent for the forgings does not involve all the expense to which the government [illegible]

In unloading the circus animals yesterday in a rush, the chain of one of the largest elephants caught about his foot and in the efforts to extricate himself, one of his toenails was torn out, causing considerable suffering to the animal and rather an uproar for a time. A general disorder was prevented, however. The animal will be disabled for about six weeks. A huge boot of leather was made for the monster and he will be carefully looked after until he recovers fully.

When the tug boat, which brought a party to this city from Rockland yesterday to attend the circus was about to return to the lime-rock city last evening, there were several intoxicated individuals on board. One of them seemed so fond of water, probably by way of variety—a great variety—that he fell into the noble Penobscot several times, as often being fished out by his companions. The repeated duckings did not appear to sober him much, so Officer Jacobs put him in a locker on board with one or two others who were in a similar condition and then the craft departed.

CIRCUS DAY.

Big Crowds Visit Barnum and Bailey's Great Show.

That important annual event, circus day, was again with us yesterday, and its characteristic features were all there. This occasion always attracts crowds of people from the surrounding cities and towns, as it is a gala event that few care to miss and thousands made their appearance here in the morning and forenoon hours.

The streets presented a lively appearance and all were good natured for were they not going to the circus?

Excellent order was preserved all day by Chief Gilman and his officers, the day force being reinforced by the night men, and nothing occurred to mar the smooth progress of the day.

The first circus train was to have arrived here at 2 A. M., but the whole caravan was greatly delayed by an accident and it was 11 A. M. before the first section of the big show arrived. The train left Augusta, where the circus appeared Wednesday, at midnight and went along all right three miles.

At Riverside Junction the rear truck of one of the cars left the rails and the car swung round in such a way that it was several hours before the train was ready to proceed on its journey. The other trains followed as soon as possible but there was a long delay in reaching Bangor, owing to the unavoidable affair.

The street parade was to have occurred at 9 A. M., but could not be given until 2.30. At that hour the parade came up from Maplewood and went down Main street, counter-marching to Maplewood. Owing to the lack of time before the afternoon performance the parade was necessarily short.

It was, however, effective and the handsome chariots, fine horses, open cages of wild animals and other attractions were gazed at with much interest by the crowds of people on the street.

The afternoon performance began about four o'clock and notwithstanding the uncertainty which existed regarding there being a performance, the huge tents were well filled. In the evening the crowd was very large the seats being entirely occupied by a greatly pleased crowd of spectators.

Imre Kiralfy's gorgeous spectacle of "Columbus and the discovery of America" began the evening entertainment and closed that of the afternoon. It is a superb presentation of the various important events in the life of Columbus. Hundreds of men and women were engaged in the spectacle and they were arrayed in most beautiful costumes.

The ballets, pageants, marches and movements of all kinds were executed with such skill and precision that under the bright lights a most brilliant effect was produced. The realistic scenery, melodious singing and band music also added to the telling impression made by a spectacle that must be seen to be appreciated. It is indeed a triumph of its kind.

The circus proper is a complete and splendid exhibition of the best ring work in the world. Every feature offered something of much interest and there were many new events which awakened much enthusiasm. There was such a wealth of attractions in the three rings that the spectators were dazzled by the quick succession of interesting acts.

There are handsome and speedy horses ridden by the finest equestrian artists, elephants, cats and bears which do seemingly impossible tricks, trapeze horizontal bar, ladder and wire performers, who kept matters lively, tumblers whose feats showed the greatest skill, a leap for life act which introduced a triple somersault, hippodrome races and a host of other things of the finest possible quality.

The menagerie contains many rare and interesting specimens of animal life and they furnished no small share of the entertainment of the afternoon and evening.

The entire circus more than fulfilled expectations and gave the crowds of people more than their money's worth. When a circus will do that it can justly claim to be the "Greatest Show on Earth" which is a cognomen well deserved as regards the Barnum & Bailey show.

Base Ball.

The Bangor base ball team will have some practice this afternoon at Maplewood Park for the game at Sorrento on Saturday. The aggregation is a strong one, and will undoubtedly make a good showing this year. Efforts have been made to secure Plaisted, pitcher of the Bowdoins, for the game at Sorrento, but he had not been heard from last evening. He would be an important addition to the team. He has been at Poland Springs.

Mr. Horace Simonton, of Rockland, and Mr. Wm. Huyler, of Thomaston, now in the city, are fine ball players. Mr. Simonton is catcher of the Rockland nine and Mr. Huyler has pitched for Tufts and other teams.

The Bangors will probably play the Rockland team in Rockland soon. Games will also be arranged with other good state teams.

Card System.

State Land Agent Oak has made an improvement in his department by introducing the card system of cataloguing, which will vastly facilitate the work of the department. Mr. Oak has secured from the Boston Library Association a full outfit for this system and is now at work perfecting it. His cards are all printed upon an excellent plan. The central idea upon which the cards will be arranged is location by township and range.

Then follows on each card a description of the land, its area, the name of the grantee, date of transfer, consideration, record of deed by volume and page, and record of plan by volume and page. At the foot of each card several blank lines are left for remarks. A card index of all the plans in the department will be kept. Each card will contain a description of the plan named, the name of the person by whom it was surveyed, date of survey, the book and page in which the plan is filed, and the record of field notes, by volume and page.

In the same way a complete card index of the various islands will be prepared. The great importance of this work can scarcely be over estimated. Those who have had business with the land office in years past know the vast amount of hard work involved in looking up records.

Often the securing of desired facts relative to a single lot involved many hours' search of the voluminous records department. When Mr. Oak completes his card catalogue the whole history of any lot, so far as it is embodied in the records of the land office, can be turned to in five minutes. Land Agent Oak deserves much credit for the enterprise he has shown in thus notably increasing the facilities of his office.

DIRECTOR MEYLAN RESIGNS

After Most Efficient Superintendence of the Young Men's Christian Association Gymnasium.

It will not be agreeable news to the many friends of Director G. L. Meylan, of the Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium, to learn that he has resigned his position and will leave next month, but such is the unpleasant fact.

Mr. Meylan came to the city two years ago from New York, and in September took charge of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. During his directorship he has been tireless in his efforts in behalf of physical culture and has brought ability and enthusiasm to his work which have had marked influence upon the many who have taken advantage of the benefits of the gymnasium and his instruction.

Besides being a cultivated athlete himself, Mr. Meylan has shown a faculty to impart his knowledge and interest the members of the gymnasium and has introduced such varieties in the way of games, etc., which would keep up the interest. In a word he has made a thoroughly competent instructor in physical culture and it was with great regret that the Young Men's Christian Association received his resignation.

Nobody has as yet been secured to take his place, which will not be an easy one to fill, but a capable director will be obtained in time for the fall and winter work.

Mr. Meylan has not as yet decided upon plans for the immediate future, but he proposes to take a regular course in medicine, receiving a physician's education. He has an excellent offer to take charge of a college gymnasium in Worcester, Mass., but has not made any decision in regard to it.

Mr. Meylan has made a great many friends during his residence in Bangor, who w[illegible] much regret his departure [illegible] wish him the best of success [illegible] He with his brother, who [illegible] calling him, will go to his home [illegible] York, the middle of next month [illegible] his arrangements for the future [illegible] be made.

Petition for Pardon.

A [illegible] largely signed by York county [illegible] has been received by Gov. Cleaves [illegible] for the pardon of Rico K. Smith [illegible] South Waterboro, who is serving a sentence of 5½ years in Thomaston for killing William Whitten of the same town.

Smith has now served about two years, and it is claimed that he has been sufficiently punished, considering the nature of the crime which startled York county on the afternoon of July 4th two years ago. Smith is a man about 60 years of age and was a brave soldier. Whitten was also a veteran. The murder took place in front of the village store in Waterboro.

It was claimed at the trial that Smith had been made the butt of some of the practical jokers of the village, and had stood it so long that patience ceased to be a virtue. While passing the store on the night in question Whitten began to taunt him, and as one of the parties had been drinking, an encounter followed. Smith struck Whitten, it is claimed, in self defence. Whitten fell backward, striking his head on the stone steps of the store and fracturing his skull, and died almost immediately. At the trial public sympathy was with Smith. He was convicted of manslaughter and was sentenced by the late Judge Virgin, of Portland.

Woman Badly Cut.

Officer Jacobs had a job on his hands last evening which was more than he bargained for. He arrested a drunken man on Haymarket square, and had him conveyed to the police station in the patrol wagon. The arrest had the effect of arousing the ire of a female named Oaks, who is somewhat celebrated by reason of her attempt at suicide by poisoning last year. Why she was interested in the case does not appear, but in her anger she struck her hand against a window with the result not only of a broken pane of glass but of a severe cut in her arm.

As soon as Officer Jacobs had disposed of his prisoner he at once telephoned for surgical assistance and doctors were soon on the ground. The woman was badly under the influence of liquor and it required the assistance of a good deal of outside help to hold her while five stitches were taken in the wound. After her wound had been dressed, she was taken to the police station to prevent her from inflicting further injuries upon herself.

Kept up for years—the offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's addressed to you, if you have Catarrh. It's a reward of $500, if they can't cure you, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing—an offer that's made in good faith by responsible men.

Think what it means! Absolute confidence in their Remedy, or they couldn't afford to take the risk. A long record of perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases—or they couldn't have faith in it. It means no more catarrh—or $500, if you fail to be cured, you won't fail to be paid.

But perhaps you won't believe it. Then there's another reason for trying it. Show that you can't be cured, and you'll get $500. It's a plain business offer. The makers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will pay you that amount if they can't cure you. They know that they can—you think that they can't. If they're wrong, you get the cash. If you're wrong, you're rid of catarrh!

Miss Flossie Geagham, of Boston, has arrived for a visit in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, of New Hampshire, have been visiting relatives in the neighboring town of Orrington.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Walter E. Russ is to held at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon, from the family residence on Centre street.

Mr. Charles Horne, of Boston, who is visiting in the city, will return home next week. His wife will spend the summer here, however.

Many Brewer people attended the big Barnum and Bailey circus yesterday afternoon and evening in Bangor and enjoyed the performances.

Brewer Lodge, A. O. U. W., is making arrangements for its annual excursion, which will go to Sargentville next Wednesday, on the Sedgwick.

Miss Alice Briggs, of Guilford, is making a two weeks' visit with Mrs. H. S. Crowell, at her residence on the corner of Main and Chamberlain streets.

Raspberries are now ripe and the pickers are hard at work every day gathering in first the berries, and then the cash they receive in exchange for them at the stores.

The dust on the streets is getting deep and a breeze or a passing team stirs up a cloud of it that makes being out of doors under such circumstances rather disagreeable.

Mr. Henry Goss, of the neighboring town of Holden, is reported as being critically ill with consumption. His daughter, aged nineteen, died Wednesday from the same dread disease.

The annual excursion of the First M. E. Sunday School occurs to-day, the party, which is expected to be a large one, going to Northport on the steamer Sedgwick. The boat leaves Tresoll wharf at 7.30 a. m.

People who go to City Hall after business hours, to pay their water rates to Collector Farnham, and do not find him there, can save themselves the inconvenience of calling again by going to his residence, which is near by, on Penobscot street.

The funeral of the late Mr. Joseph Clair, of South Brewer, who died Tuesday, was held yesterday morning, at 9 o'clock, from St. John's Catholic church, in Bangor. Mr. Clair's death resulted from consumption, and he was 33 years and 4 months.

Mr. Henry Stickney and Miss Hattie Baker, of North Orrington, were married Tuesday evening at the house of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Baker. Refreshments were served after the ceremony and the happy occasion was made a very pleasant one for all present.

The job of building concrete walks at the Excelsior, Page and High school buildings has been completed and work of the same nature is now going on at South Brewer. When that is done, if enough of the money appropriated is left a walk will be built at the Brimmer Grammar school building.

Many of the farmers are getting their haying operations near to completion and will finish this week. The weather has been exceptionally fine for them and as a result a good sized crop has been put in the barns. The price of hay during the coming year is likely, to be quite high, it is said, and the farmers who have got their barns filled are happy.

Many people from the surrounding towns were in the city yesterday on their way to Bangor to see the great Barnum & Bailey circus, and the electric cars, the ferry boat and the fruit and confectionery dealers did a big business, as is usual on circus day. The stores in general profited by the influx of visitors from the county, as many farmers combined business with pleasure, and took advantage of being in the city by purchasing needed articles.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

Street Line Matters Discussed at Length.

A special meeting of the City Council was held last evening and the following business was transacted:

N. H. Hall was drawn as a Traverse Juror for the August term of court.

The committee on sewers reported on the matter of extending sewers to low water mark and at the committee's recommendation the Betton street sewer was ordered continued to low water mark, and the Center street sewer continued as far down as the appropriation would allow. The street commissioner was instructed to do the work at once.

Mayor Tefft presented a summary of the money expended in the various departments thus far since March, as follows: Common schools, $3,479.67; high school, $704.73; street lights, $437.50; contingent, $324.75; pauper, $730.65; highways, $2218.21; salary, $35; free text books, $201.71; fire department, $50.50; police, $430.07; interest, $687; sewers, $206.32; new school house lien, $800. There are credits in many departments.

The Mayor then brought up the street line matter and spoke on the subject. He advocated decisive action by the Council in regard to street lines and said that all property owners should be treated alike. He would, however, spare shade trees when possible and thought whatever action was taken should be with due forethought and caution. He introduced Surveyor Baldwin's report on the Wilson street boundaries which showed that buildings and fences encroached on the street in many places, all the way from a few inches to several feet.

He then introduced a form for an order directing the street committee to notify owners of fences or buildings which are within or lay over the Wilson street line to move them and also instructing the committee to investigate the length of time during which the fence or building had stood. The matter was discussed and it finally coming up that there was a question as to the rights of the city in regard to the street, owing to it once having been a country road and afterwards discontinued as such, the town's later action not being fully known, it was referred to the city solicitor for investigation as to that point.

THE RAJAH'S RUBY

By J. G. BETHUNE.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

CHAPTER VII.

"I DON'T THINK YOU HAVE GOT THE RAJAH'S RUBY."

The following morning, when the two sepoys appeared on the front porch of the Wingfield hotel, Max Manson was in the act of saying goodby to the landlord.

"I must take the next train to New York," said he; "the distance to the station is so short I'll walk, but I have no time to lose."

Nevertheless he stood a few minutes after one of the aliens started in the direction of the station. When the detective reached that point, the fellow was lounging among several waiting passengers. Without seeming to pay attention to him Max observed that he bought no ticket. There could be no doubt that he had gone thither to watch Manson.

The latter bought with some ostentation a ticket for the metropolis and entered the smoking car of the train, which drew up a few minutes later. The glance which he cast at the platform showed the East Indian still there, where he doubtless staid until after the cars had steamed away.

"He knows I am booked for New York," reflected Manson, "and is sure that I will go straight through, but I have some doubts on that point."

The first station at which the train drew up was about 10 miles away. There the detective disembarked, and a half hour later boarded the cars in the opposite direction. Before they came to a halt he took a cautious survey of the platform. If the Asiatic was there, he intended to stay on the train, for it was necessary above everything that his return to Wingfield should be unknown and unsuspected by those fellows.

The coast seemed to be clear, and he stepped out, a number of other people doing the same, to say nothing of several who took their departure from the place. Manson was specially anxious to get back to the inn without detection by the foreigners. He made his way along and through the street with the greatest possible precaution. It was to be supposed that the peddlers would be absent by that time retailing their knickknacks through the neighborhood. Manson was confident, therefore, when he ascended the steps of the hotel without having caught the first glimpse of them, that he had nothing to fear in the way of discovery.

The landlord naturally showed some surprise at seeing his late guest again, but the latter, shaking him heartily by the hand, said:

"Strange that I should have forgotten something. With your permission I would like to go to my room for a few minutes."

"Of course, of course," was the response; "jes' make yerself at home. I'll be glad to have you stay a week."

They were neat and tidy at the hotel, for, though the hour was quite early, Manson found that his bed and room had been put in good order. The landlord had given him a key with which he admitted himself, setting his valise on the floor. Listening for some minutes and cautiously surveying his surroundings, he was convinced that no one was in sight. He inserted the key in the adjoining door, where the peddlers had spent the preceding night. He could not help smiling when he found that the lock responded as readily to the key as did his own.

"I've no doubt it will fit every door along the hall," was his conclusion as he relocked his own door after setting down his valise in the room he was about to inspect.

In case any one should come upon him while engaged in this apartment he could make the reasonable plea of a mistake quite natural under the circumstances.

The detective lost no time. The appearance of the room showed that the late occupants expected to return, for a considerable of their trumpery lay about the floor, and some of their extra clothing was suspended from the hooks in the closet.

Recalling where he had heard that peculiar noise when listening the night before, Manson began a careful examination of the surbase running along the side of the room next to his own.

"They were at work somewhere near that spot," he said, looking keenly at the portion near the corner of the apartment. "I heard them using their knife for a good while. They are cunning workers at that sort of thing and have concealed their work well."

When some minutes passed without any discovery, a feeling of doubt crept into his mind, and he asked himself whether it was not some trick, after all, which they were playing upon him.

"If it was, I can't suspect its nature, but I'll find out."

There was so little light in the corner, despite the two windows, that he struck a match, and stooping down passed it slowly along the wood. Using his vision the best he could, he finally detected a tiny bit of chipping on the cheap, ingrain carpet close to the wall. It resembled a fragment from a match that some one had dropped, but it was the clew for which he was searching.

A rectangular ridge two or three inches in length extended along the surbase so faintly marked that only the closest scrutiny could detect it.

Inserting the point of his knife, he exerted a steady and increasing pressure. Soon there was a slight yielding, and then a shell of wood resembling the thin lid of a small box fell out on the floor, revealing a cavity behind it a couple of inches in depth.

Max Manson's heart gave a quick throb when he perceived a fine tissue paper resting within, but without any nervousness of manner, though his excitement was intense, he drew it out. He unfolded it just enough to catch a glimpse of a red, round substance within when he shoved it into his vest pocket.

Then with the same care the husband shown from the first he replaced the covering, adjusting it with such deftness that the appearance was precisely the same as before. He blew out the third match which he had found it necessary to employ, placing that, like its companions, in his pocket, so as not to leave any trace of his work behind.

Rising to his feet, he passed out of the room, carefully relocked the door behind him and once more entered the apartment where he had spent the previous night. Then, walking to the window, where he had full light, he took out the paper and unrolled it.

An exclamation of delighted astonishment escaped him. The object was the size almost of a robin's egg, deep red in color, bright and seemingly with a light almost as luminous as that of a diamond.

"Eureka! I have found it. That's the rajah's ruby as sure as I live! Did any man ever have a better stroke of fortune?"

He turned it over in his hand and feasted his eyes upon its beauty.

"I am not much of a judge of precious stones, but I'll wager that that gem is worth all that is claimed, which is $100,000. What a story it could tell if it but possessed the power of speech!"

Max Manson was certainly authorized in felicitating himself, for his success had been little short of marvelous.

"My theory was right. Dr. Maldoff stole the gem from Miss Livermore and was paid well for it by these two wretches. The shock from which she died was not caused by their visit, but by the physician himself. There ought to be some way of punishing him, but I know of none, for these fellows will never betray him. When they find how they have been outwitted, they will quietly swallow their loss, for I don't intend to give them a second chance to steal the prize."

There was no call for him to stay longer at the hotel, so he bade the landlord goodby again, and hurrying to the station was just in time to catch a through train for New York. He scanned his surroundings closely before entering the cars, but observed nothing of the East Indians; but all the same, the very one that had followed him to the station that morning saw him.

This fellow was the one known as Wichman, and peering around the corner of a building, carefully screening his body from observation meanwhile, he kept his black eyes fixed on the detective as long as he was in sight.

Max Manson did not forget his obligations to Folsom Simpson, whom he had left working on the case at Ellenville. A moment before entering the cars he telegraphed him in cipher:

"The case is closed. I have recovered the ruby and am on my way to headquarters. Wire me there."

"Simpson is a good fellow and will send me his congratulations. Whatever he says, too, he will mean, for there is no envy in his nature. I can see now plainer than ever how he maneuvered from the first to throw the glory of the whole thing in my way."

The day was drawing to a close when his train rumbled into the Grand Central station, and calling a cab he was soon whirled to headquarters. Chief Varick was absent, and he found no one present to whom he deemed it advisable to make his report.

The following message, however, from Simpson was awaiting him, and, as may be supposed, Manson read it with peculiar feelings:

"I would like to congratulate you, old fellow, but I don't think you have got the rajah's ruby."

"What the mischief can he mean?" Manson asked himself as he held the writing in his hand and read and reread it. "I told him plainly enough that I had recovered the gem. It looks to me as if Fol feels a little jealous after all."

Yielding to a vague misgiving for which he could not account, he left the office, and boarding a street car rode to the well known establishment of Tiffany & Co.

"I will get them to write out a certificate for me, and forward that to Fol, since he won't accept mine."

Max Manson expected to see the eyes of the clerk before whom he laid the stone protrude with amazement. So they did, but when the gentleman took the gem in hand a peculiar expression came over his face, an expression which deepened the detective's uneasiness.

"You don't often see a gem like that," remarked the visitor.

"I don't know," replied the clerk, with a smile. "It is true they are not generally made so large."

"Not made so large! What do you mean?"

"I suppose, my friend, you know that this gem, as you call it, is nothing but a piece of colored glass, worth at the most perhaps two or three dollars?"

MEANS DEATH THIS TIME.

"Dot" Sonwell, the Snake Charmer, Bitten by a Rattler.

NEW YORK, July 17.—"Dot" Sonwell, the attractive charmer of snakes in an East Side museum, has probably tempted fate for the last time. A black rattlesnake fastened its fangs in her flesh yesterday, and she now lies dying on a cot in St. Vincent's Hospital, her face swollen and distorted beyond recognition. Only three weeks ago, as she twirled a snake above her head, she felt in her arm the sharp sting of the serpent. But George M. Junsen, an ex-snake charmer, quickly and tightly bound up the arm above the wound, thus stopping the circulation of the blood. But the wound was an ugly one and kept her indoors until yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Junsen, the superintendent of the museum, was surprised when the woman turned up yesterday afternoon. He said that her face was pale and drawn, her lips trembled as she spoke. "Do you think you're strong enough to go on, my dear?" asked the manager.

"Oh, yes, I can get through it somehow," answered the girl. "I must earn bread for the babies at home."

Five minutes later "Dot" Sonwell, resplendent in her stage dress, calmly stepped on the platform. A big wooden box, made in three compartments, was by her side. Bending down, she lifted two or three of the common brown snakes and stood erect, holding them above her head, twisting them around in her hand. The result of the trial seemed to satisfy her that her strength would carry her through.

Replacing the brown snake in the first compartment of the box, she stood still for a minute, looking steadily down upon the black slimy monster curled up in compartment No. 3. It was a specimen of the diamond-backed rattlesnake, common enough in Florida, and one of three that had been sent to her about a week ago. The snake slowly reared his head and looked at the woman. Then she caught the reptile by the throat and dragged it out of the box. Her strong, supple fingers clutched the writhing body, and for a moment she stood, her head thrown back, her finger erect, and with every muscle distended, her arms held high above her head, her two hands grasping the wriggling, twisting creature, vainly striving to get free.

Suddenly the erect figure swayed, shrank and bent forward. Limp and motionless, as the serpent, with one sharp, convulsive jerk, twisted out of her grasp and fastened his fangs in her neck. Then it dropped to the floor. Two men tried to suck the poison from the wound, but they were too late. Even as they carried her out of the building the neck and face had begun to swell and blacken, and before she had reached her home delirium held her. The teeth had touched her flesh at a point behind the right ear, and the doctor saw that the case was desperate. In an ambulance she was taken, fighting and screaming, to St. Vincent's Hospital. The poison had done its work quickly. Her neck and face were one mass of discoloration, and she presently lapsed into insensibility which will end only in her death.

HOW SHE BECAME A MISSIONARY.

"I'm doing missionary work a good deal of the time," was the reply of one of the most charming women of New York to a friend who asked how she busied herself. "I see by your looks you wonder what I mean by that. I'll tell you. A few years ago life was a burden to me. I had been a victim to female weakness of the most aggravated character for a long time, and the doctors failed to help me. Existence was a long, steady, terrible torture—a lingering, living death. One day I saw Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription advertised in the newspaper. Something in the advertisement impressed me favorably. I caught at the glimmer of hope it held out as the drowning man is said to catch at a straw. I did not dare to hope. But I got the medicine, and behold the result! I feel so well, so strong, and O, so thankful that I go about telling other women what saved me. [illegible]"
